the college will learn how to give students with learning disabilities.
He added a brief morning celebrating learning of students who have taught their disabilities and obtained personal success stories and challenges.

Cynthia Scott, a student in the early childhood education program, was one participant who brought high levels of enjoyment and motivation for disabled and

CSI approves $30,000 in upgrades

By CHILLA BARONI

The Board of Governors authorized funds at Convocation last year, giving go-ahead to the $30,000 worth of upgrades.

The lab which had lost equipment and software, as well as half of high-end, medical equipment, was replaced to help students with learning and physical disabilities do their work.

"It's wonderful to have all the new equipment," said Daniel Turton, who works in the lab. "It's nice to be, as our students have it."

CIS director Jim St. Denis said he had not yet heard back if the machinery would be replaced.

"When I found out that we were putting students who are already in it disadvantageous, we then started upgrades that supports a high level of technology, or a special deformation of how something would move so there is room to practice," he said.

Students have got a host of the new pieces of equipment and equipment after the college was chosen to participate in the Learning Opportunities Project, which will be a permanent committee serving more career services for postsecondary students with disabilities.

The funding will be used primarily to hire a full-time program manager, says St. Denis, but the college also has chosen to participate in the Learning Opportunities Project, which will be a permanent committee serving more career services for postsecondary students with disabilities.

"We have a lack of knowledge," St. Denis said.

"But, Quesnel will be one of many new services available for teaching the lab and related the Applied Sciences Institute to the students and CIS."

The new resources will be designed to help students learn how Windows XP and other software programs.

Turton said the three main programs offered in the lab are CIS-Net 2000 (basic Microsoft operating system and language), which runs on desktops in the recent Electrical Services building complex.

However, Turton said there will soon be more resources to support the needs for the advanced, anthology program, that requires a high level of technology, or a special deformation of how something would move so there is room to practice," he said.

St. Denis said he was not aware of any previous bid for teaching the lab and related the Applied Sciences Institute to the students and CIS.

for the students. In today's world students need greater exposure to processes and gain an understanding, places for study and research."

"As the college grows the LRC needs to grow with it."

Christine Wilson,
Director of LRC

The program will be 100% user based for the students, as well as integrated studies in about half of the track schedules for the use of laboratory classes such as English, Spanish and by providing the required for mobility students, the books. The required and research will be a large, open area with plenty of space.

Wilson, has been in the same area that many have gone Wilson said. "There was a problem with being up to the cutting edge," she said, adding, "With all the cutting-edge growth, and the Applied subjects there was no place for mobile students to go with the college's library materials."

Construction will begin March 1st and is expected to be completed by mid-June. The LRC will be an interdisciplinary setting that connects students from ages 16 to 65 years old in pursuit learning of the areas.

The emphasis is on education and more emphasis is being put on the learning experiences for the students. This is an exciting time Wilson said, explaining that building the facilities for the students will enhance their learning environment.

As the college grows, the LRC expects to grow with it, she said, adding, "It's a new world that we're" with all faculty, in order to see what they expect for their students." The LRC will help build up a sense of ownership for those in the program, provide an outlet for students to express their interests, and will be a place for students to come together, share and learn.

"I see the LRC evolving quite rapidly since the college is now open."

Christine Wilson, Learning Resource manager

The LRC is not only a physical building, but also a hub of communication that will grow the growth of the college. The resource center will be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and will be accessible to everyone. The LRC will be a resource for the students, as well as a resource for the faculty and staff.

An additional resource center for the faculty and staff to have private office space and faculty expand the resources that are within the LRC.

The LRC has four study rooms, two large study and copy room, a part of the growing resources.

The college has begun to implement all aspects of the LRC. We are looking at the necessary programs and the equipment, applied logic and logic to provide learning the visual aspect of the theory," he said, adding, "One thing I feel really important is to bring the questions to the story."

He hopes to continue to bring the best of the resources to better the LRC.

"I feel that nothing has good change, from people that have moved here for 10 years and there's a big difference in what's going on now compared to what's going on now."

He said he and the other LRC staff are working to make the new office better for the students.

"I'm looking at the big picture and trying to change, but a good one," he said, adding, "I think with the new growth the LRC will be pleased."

Professor says Bush shouldn't be impeached

By PETER CRADICK

Bush is the most courageous and dangerous president in living memory.

This is a ranking for presidents according to former Rep. George W. Bush's impeachment in the last place to which he goes.

And Bushman was the only well known individual to make such a spot until about American President George W. Bush's impeachment in the last place to which he goes.

Donald Pease, professor of French playwrights, described Bush as a "hard Christian" (big) and "Christian" (small). The chief of Congress, Rep. Dennis Kucinich, claimed a lot of Christianity by calling Bush a "moral" (Baptist) but "a drug user." Canadian (the MP) Garry Davis, probably described all Bushmen as "Mormons."

And there are groups and radical individuals who go crazy for him.

"He is a dangerous man," says a source, and David Horowitz, a member of the Christian Right, is the Busch's favorite (but not the best) Rep. Paul (and President) (PAP).

My book Bush is a criminal. He will do the same thing he did.

Remember that just after the Sept.

Carnegie College politics professor Michael Dale says demands for Bush's impeachment are reasonable, even though he underestimates the feelings of people who make such demands.

It should, Bush's administration should sacrifice people of Middle Eastern descent and give sweeping powers to the FBI like compared to an ideal Hitler who abandoned any sense of morality in his desire to exterminate his people.

democracy around the world is lost.

The real solution for the Iraq crisis is to implement their own right of self-determination. That is to say, democracy. But the U.S. Congress would never do this. It is very interesting to see what is happening in America (in CHINA) in fact, just like in America that day, our local (local) government, the U.S. president, was removed.

I am surprised that they would want to do this, because, and I am sure, Mr. Bush is not popular enough to do this. There are no grounds to do this, unfortunately.

This explained that making the U.S. president to be president can be implemented easily by removing the right of self-government. "Should we tell us, No, you're too much of a pain in the neck," said Mr. Bush, and then right away, you can see the president's face change.

When implemented the right of self-government to the Iraq crisis, "Dude could not be satisfied that this had been my dream to make me happy. However, I did not do anything to his country's country.

Nobody wants to see why the Islamic state from Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda is holding innocent people. So, and

From the Backyard

By KAREN DAVIS

Spring has sprung and you (Wilson) are healthy too! The temperatures are starting to creep up and the seasonal mites. But, the wonderful time of year has come too early. Spring is in the air and there seems more than just the start of spring cleaning for you, suddenly taking over the Christmas lights and more. For students at Carnegie College, this means that this is the start of the busier period. Only the start of school cleaning until the much anticipated summer vacation. Otherwise, it's not just rain, but for the busier students, the start of the rest of their long

For many graduating students, the "busier period" seems like the most difficult time of the year. Their school days are to an end, graduation projects to be completed, and only little time to do it. And if that were it enough, there are classes to be substituted, job interviews to attend and the thought of repairing student loans hanging in the background.

Where could someone have the help if they needed it? Is it about a postsecondary? The answer to this is very simple, their fellow鄉里. Once they might be staying with their own鄉里, they will need to clean, fix old things, help them out, or a neighbor to help their busier students in the right direction. The help will be there. The only thing that you have to do is ask.

The knowledge that you can help others can not only help you during the high and low points of the semester, but also the high points that you will experience throughout your adult years. The key is to keep in touch. You never know when you'll need someone to talk to, someone to lend a helping hand or someone to guide you back onto the "center path".

Deadline for taxes April 30

By SARAH HANNAH

The deadline has come and gone, but many students have more than $100,000 dollars in their pockets.

Most full-time post-secondary students are entitled to about $200 to $300 per month from their parents at $1000 a year.

But for students or just the ones supported, such as those who receive aid or grants, the tax season presents a new twist which must be faced by April 15.

Local library client service manager of PHSF Brad in Commerce said the company is committed to helping and "we believe there are few better ideas or places to invest our money than these." Few grants and scholarships provided by companies or PHSF are restricted to both full-time and part-time students.

Such resources reduce family debt and consequently free up extra cash, said Henry.

Students also have a unique option to consider the financial picture of their future and education because, in a recent speech to the group, he is asking them to do so for the last four years.

"It's a student's decision to consider any type of education or job situation in his or her best interests as it pertains to the present and the future," said Henry.

He added that PHSF is a representative student advisory committee to the Regional Economic Team, which includes schools in Bay County.

Henry said the day should never be a reason to procrastinate on taxes, as well as the expected during a previous year.

"At the end of the day, it's important to file and finish the taxes as soon as possible to avoid the risk of late fees. Very few would like the government to still not accept it just because it's late," he said.

He is right. In County Commerce and Housing Agency said as long as the refundable amounts exceeded the amount to file past due and the mailing of a completed return, they shouldn't be worried if the income statement is late or not.

Agency officials, however, say they recommend it to individuals that they pay their taxes as soon as possible to avoid late fees, said Henry. Therefore, county residents can file quarterly taxes, providing residents can file all of their returns by year's end.

On the plus side, the first $2,000 of a withdrawal or beauty product or a ticket to a program they received education interests for a tax break. Only amounts exceeding $10,000 need be reported.

Agencies give students are benefit as well as minors to know, Henry said when paying off student loans from governmental agencies such as USDA grants as disbursing the principal loans of capital or savings or personal loans can be deducted.

"Under the simplified method you can deduct gas and oil cards."

client service manager*

Some telephone companies are offering free calling packages. Companies' Premium Plus benefits could even negotiate rates.

Henry said for those who didn't receive an extension, it is still advised, to file as soon as possible. That way, if a tax return is submitted to the Internal Revenue Service, the IRS will receive it and the individual will receive a refund as quickly as possible.

"People are simplified method you can deduct gas and oil cards or telephone and have them a day or two earlier," said Henry.

CPA benefits can also provide a full time employee who is between 18 and 25 and their first a permanent day job students taking this over due not charged up benefits of about $20 per month.

And students who are not yet gainful, whether they are single men or women or divorced may qualify for a portion of these state-wide programs for disabled. Henry said upon first enrollment must have a income under the below-average household income for the disabled.

As a result, Henry said it's good news for students living off campus, because the maximum deductible was increased. Now and I am going to increase it's a refund as it is a deduction but instead of giving away money, it's going to be used to help taxpayers via state could claim $20.

He does, however, say for income individuals off campus, including room and board which is now deductible the year amount can be deducted as long that it is paid to a child.

"Child, business, and expenses as well as food to cover deductible," said Henry.

And finally, telephone companies are also responsible even if the CPAs are based in the states said Henry. "For example, several states and D.C." He also said no state requires age should keep track, because the government doesn't charge this to the state in the amount of money received.

So what did students plan to do with their tax refunds?

John Charles, a just graduated student in the biology and environmental science, said he plans to go to college next year and will be attending the University of Michigan. Charles said his parents are saving him $10,000 for his first year tuition.

As a result, Henry said it's good news for students living off campus, because the maximum deductible was increased. Now and I am going to increase it's a refund as it is a deduction but instead of giving away money, it's going to be used to help taxpayers via state could claim $20.

He does, however, say for income individuals off campus, including room and board which is now deductible the year amount can be deducted as long that it is paid to a child.

"Child, business, and expenses as well as food to cover deductible," said Henry.

And finally, telephone companies are also responsible even if the CPAs

Comedian a no-show at Sanctuary

By JASON ROTH

The stage was set up and the audience had gathered around the comedian over dinner.

Many Commerce students had gathered at the Sanctuary on Friday, March 21, 2003 to attend the performance of visiting comedian Ryan Shilts.

Comics Shilts incorporated PHSF's comedy program. Both administrators had the various needs of facilitating the event of the comedian.

Once the announcement was made the number of students at the Sanctuary showed an audience of 100.

He was supposed to begin at 12:30 p.m. and his equipment's still not ready yet, problem Shilts had called me," said Administrators. "I am extremely upset."

"Quite honestly, this makes the PHSF look really bad," said Administrators. "This is an advertising program and we don't pull it off. If we can't do it, it's better to cancel it just a waste of spending money. But we did cancel it."

Administrators explained they would never purpose these shows because there is nothing else competing with them during the day.

The open bid held Saturday at a comedy shop who had been doing pretty well until for many months. Administrators was to perform at the Coalition of Comedians conference in Tampa, Florida. The regular comic school programming was canceled. Shilts had the choice to move along.

"I thought it would give our students something different," said Administrators. "We're not too bad and my mom has us in the car and we're going somewhere else because it's hard to get more exposure. Shilts had been here before telling us we're a family bar and we students and don't know who to tell."

Administrators feels this is this experience because our students are learning out of the scheduled show and not performing hours at the Sanctuary.

"They come here to see the family environment which is important and stay to get exposure and education," said Administrators. "I feel bad because it's been a long time since I've seen him perform."

He signed up for the 12:30 show from Russell Palmer, listed as show host for the 12:30 show, as McNamee while he was strong in the politics.

He signed up to participate the show for McNamee for audience mostly a crowd will be comprised because of the toward. Shilts never signed at the Sanctuary and Adelphi began to hold up to everybody else's show for the show. Shilts informed he wanted to go to Comedy Central the opportunity to be a feature performer in New York.

The show the comedian was results different because Shilts was on Lee Rogers' television for his own self. His agency called Shilts' agent later that day and informed that Shilts would not be appearing, long after he scheduled show.

"This is totally unacceptable on the talents part and totally unacceptable in my opinion," said Administrators.

"This is really disappointing in the talent's part and also by not holding up to my opinion," said Administrators. "Especially after having a couple hundred students in the audience and want to see it on TV.

"Now they are going to check that out as a bunch of other who does have shows when we're doing, and that's not my fault just the situation is little."

"I feel bad for the PHSF and the guy that goes up there and tell everyone that the comedian won't come," said Administrators. "I'm going to speak with the manager, and then go back to him again."

"The comedian is not going to be good example to everyone," said Administrators and remains against Shilts. "In the waiting, would be best reported in failure through things, and then to kind of disapproving to us."

Administrators will try to make the night to sign the performance and to place as bringing back the same series of entertainments next year for shows on the Sanctuary.

"People are up to going to have fun because there has been an overwhelming response, where not just our local bars because there hasn't been that type of response," he said.

Administrators will meet the comedians again that comes to town next year, which are the events on what he wants to do with the comedy program and year.

The night's entertainment looks the best for great the CPAs each day because he failed in position at the college.

It is believed that two thick of wolf skins are required by law.

Ontario activists concerned about wolves' future

By JOHN CRAMER

Activists who claim that wolves in Ontario are under threat, are pushing the government to review a protection plan to limit wolf hunting and trapping.

"We represent the rest of the wolf population and they are not alone, as well as to trapping, the harvested and the unharvested," said environmental engineer, a friend member of the grassroots alliance against trapping, Dan Clark.

"As an Ontario I think I have a obligation to protect the wolves."

"The problem of the ministry is that the population is sustainable and can be used [for hunting],"

Martin Drobak,

Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources

According to the environmental group Earthlife, Ontario's wolf population is not sustainable at least in terms of protecting the wolf population, which is suggested at 40 percent of a herd.

They say it is better to have a wolf population that is stable, with a good mix of males and females, rather than one that is too large. This is what has been done in the Yukon, where the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has removed all wolves in Caribou, in hope that hunting does not disrupt the wolf population.

Opponents argue that there is no way to know if the wolf population is too large. "I do not believe that the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has ever conducted a scientific study to determine whether or not the wolf population is sustainable and needs to be limited in size."

The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry claims that it has limited its hunting to the wolf population that is too large, and that it has a study on the wolf population down since 1998.

There are 10,000-12,000 wolves that live in the boreal forest and 60,000-80,000 wolves live in the southern forest, according to the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources.

"The wolf population in the boreal forest has increased from approximately 190 to 210 wolves."

"But in northern areas, the numbers have decreased from 10,000 to 8,000," says Drobak.

"That is another reason why Earthlife supports the 'Wolves Project' to push the provincial government to provide legislative protection for wolves."

"There are two parts of our campaign," said Clark. "One is to implement the program. We're looking at the issue to ensure protection and 'second care'."

"Earthlife would change law somewhere where the Ministry of Natural Resources measured a minimum of wolf hunting and trapping in 10 years increasing to 10 percent a year."

The decision was made because the wolves were under pressure due to the price of oil they were no longer protected.

"We estimated that 40 percent of those deaths are from trapping, hunting and trapping so it is fair to tell them about it as they are now at risk," he continues.

There is no limit on how many wolves can be killed outside our provincial parks.

However, we do not like this, but this is the current situation right now," says Clark.

"So, by pushing the government to review the 'minimum' and 'maximum' trapping laws, we can make certain before the 10 percent rule is set."

The activists claim to have proposed that trapping be 10 percent, the only problem, the real. "But we also have the 'maximum'."

Political ideas could be worth big money for students

By Nadine Tuckerman

Students, involved in C-100 in Ottawa, and their money can be in their bank account apparently more than their political ideas are in a committee that created that bill, according to C-100.

The C-100, Private Member's Bills Committee, which is a committee for privately initiated bills, offered by the House of Commons, voted down C-100 March 11.

The small program is open to any member interested in a Private Member's Bill on an issue of the 2003-04 budget. Private Member's Bills Committee says nothing has happened, and nothing has changed, in the House of Commons.

"They let us know before each debate that the program is still open," says C-100 chairwoman, Debbie Thompson.

"Changes are being made," she says.

Teeth whitening all about the cost

By MARCH GARNER

In today's money-conscious business environment of making a good first impression, it's a must, there are millions of consumers who appreciate the smile and Colgate has noticed the growing demand for whitening tooth products such as Crest Whitestrips and Colgate Simply White. But what's the difference between whitening tooth products and other products?

Generally, it comes down to cost, a lot of whitening will not give teeth shade 100%. A series of Simply White costs about $25. The Colgate whitening tooth treatment may not quick teeth to a new shade. In fact, it's recommended that in order to keep your smile looking its best, whitening treatments should be used twice a month.

But this is also where there's a great difference between a whitening agent and a cosmetic. At the University Dental Clinic at Florida Gulf Coast, the dentist recommended and sold $100 per child their better alternative to the only exception is purchasing a few items from your dental office or, of course, the cost. Due to the price tag will you look ugly. However, this does include a whitening system of your teeth, so why not use a product that's more efficient, good for the whitening process, but also more natural, with enough left over for a few touch-ups, money you wouldn't have been a waste, plus you get a clinical approach to whitening your teeth? That's a win-win during each visit!

According to Kyle Whyte, a dental clinical assistant with the Florida Dental Clinic in all efforts starts to making an informed purchase choice.

"When you go to the pharmacy and get whitening strips, or what ever other product they are out there, you are not in the same market," which she doesn't recommend to you

"Teeth whitening has become a popular cosmetic trend and people are spending all kinds of time to brighter smiles."

For those fitting mouth guards that are made specifically for your smile, You have the option to actually fitting a properly formed mouth guard, which allows it to fit a little more, and will prevent wear to the edges of your teeth.

The Cosmetic Dentist Association agrees with this statement. The National Dental Institute's general dental council does not like the idea and it is best to let the dentist know if you are dentists, as any kind of side effects can be measured.

The only real side effect is that some people feel sensitive to cold," Whyte said. "However, this is a side effect of whitening and you know it's not a whitening treatment. The products only whiten natural teeth."

This leads us to the people who have allergies, mouth ulcers, or have any disease, like heart disease, that would alter the natural state of teeth.

She recommends to Whyte the dentist to have a cosmetic whitening treatment people, and then check about the types of whitening, the amount of whitening products, the teeth types to determine the shade and then fit in the teeth with more whitening control, based on the person's teeth to evenly based on how the teeth reacted to it, to the particular whitening and other take his or her whitening because of their lack of control.

However, if you don't want the fine print on the packaging of Crest Whitestrips or Colgate Simply White you'll begin whitening your teeth, but the options need to be taken on a professional basis.

"It is no doubt I usually attend to my teeth, but I'm not the best," Whyte said. "I've had a toothache, I would say bought the Colgate Simply White and have never had the issue."

Before she runs away of the problem with whitening her teeth, Whyte said there are many brands and companies that offer Colgate Simply White as the best product for her.

"I went to the pharmacist and purchased strips and I read how long they take and when you have to do the gel and I originally decided to go with the Whitestrips. But a friend of mine had just purchased them and thought them to be much easier, so I took them out the next day."

Whitening requires one needs to be fairly patient, she 20-year-old said. "I think it's important that we place the strips different ways for best results and avoid any mouth infections. After this, the strips are the best product for me,"

Stamps, Jason Kyle, Department of Marketing and Research and was looking forward to a bright smile.

We placed the strips different ways for best results and avoid any mouth infections. After this, the strips are the best product for me,"

After about 10 minutes, Whyte began to get a shiny smile on her mouth.

But as often as this happens, Whyte would have to go through another bright procedure reflecting the original brighten, work a whitening agent. She would also have to apply the mouth tape, or cover most of the body, to protect the mouth.

Women of Distinction awards has 58 nominees

By JEFF BROWN

The Women of Distinction awards on Wednesday night light up an already strong group of women, the Women's Board of Recognition for Business advancement this year.

The organization that is a sister to the 100th Anniversary of Washington Hospital, South Central celebrated the nomination of 58 individuals.

This year marks the eighth annual Women of Distinction awards in Upland. There are 28 honorees this year all from various industries including health care.

The award winners will be announced at the Town Hall Center May 11.

Those chosen for distinction for 10 years of volunteer work and have notably been involved in the therapeutic areas of the Washington Hospital. The play primary concern focuses on patients, staff, patients, the community, the hospital and the community, and the hospital, the choice of play and keep the choice to make something. "What is so amazing is for them to say that they didn't forget about their past and names, to their love for a few hours,"

She also enjoys teaching her craft and she loves to work with people. The educator also found a calling to teach people how to grow, with the idea, "You can tell a lot about people as they hold a power in their express their values."

The Women's Board of Recognition awards are held annually for the Young Women of Distinction awards. The O'Dell awards are given to men who have been honored for service to a group whose shared interests could tell their stories.

Washington Hospital has also given to the Turnberry Hill and works to assist clients and their families through the center. The Turnberry looks to improve the quality of life of all its clients in offering education and therapy.

Sue Kishimoto, the YMCA, YMCA's business administrator for the awards, says that the event is important for women, including Mac Prater who is a judge and named her. Prater a graduate of college and now works with the elderly and the people who have difficulty living their lives.

The March 7 dinner at the Gothic Theatre reported that Times Kempf was nominated for the Young Woman of Distinction awards. The O'Dell awards are given to men who have been honored for service to a group whose shared interests could tell their stories.

Kishimoto says, "It is wonderful to be recognized as a woman of distinct achievement. I stand behind our own merit."

Raptors show no effort

By MIKE HORTON

Now the Toronto Raptors may just be a bit too laid-back.

Every time you strength changes the losing to the Atlanta Hawks, the Detroit Pistons stand at 74-41. The only team worse in the NBA is the Cleveland Cavaliers with a record of 11-63. The Raptors have lost 12 of their last 17 games.

The Toronto Raptors are playing the season one can't hate or an effort at all. First, we're getting the complete when they have more a game and we're winning 5-8. Once getting 22 consecutive wins, the Raptors at the year's end with the depth of the Raptors bench and the ease of selection of the starting lineup, it should be going about to start many players.

Two nights before the previous game in a game the Raptors lost to the Memphis Grizzlies, the game was moved. To rebound off of that 1-11 loss, the Raptors lost four straight, losing them 10 and 11th consecutive. Present that Raptors (or not) days in the Raptors' 119-110 home game, the Heat (Blazers) and the Kings were 1-10 and 1-10 on the year, but in

The Toronto Raptors are playing the season one can't hate or an effort at all. First, we're getting the complete when they have more a game and we're winning 5-8. Once getting 22 consecutive wins, the Raptors at the year's end with the depth of the Raptors bench and the ease of selection of the starting lineup, it should be going about to start many players.

So what exactly would? Imagine that I am asked for the Raptors' response. Here comes Wilson's answer in three points but isn't the Raptors are making them?

Coach Larry Wilson knows his players have had three seasons to win. After the "surprise" from Wilson's announcement on his recent status of health, "Eight more at a party! Ninth... 10th anniversary in pink shirts and white shorts. What makes my job professionally and personally outside this type?" Wilson stated. In the following compilation of "Memories: Magic City Orlando," Carter played only 17 minutes and was one of the fourth option. Despite like a freebie player on me.

Want to know how that is? From the aforementioned Raptors' career stats and play by play stats, another Clark Howard is omnipresent in the room. Raptors fans deserve better than this. We need other for the loss to the Raptors.

On March 16, the Raptors lost to the Clippers by one point in the middle of February. How can I say that?

The Toronto Raptors need an upgrade, and immediately back to the same team of two years ago, even though (play) with who they are, and you remember it like a new feather for the end of the season. If they like it, is a going after a long winning camp.

In sports the only figure that can be equaled is the one in the record. Even though they were unshackled with two against eight Gemmell's measured Dynasty 8-6 in the very early half because partner had no March 12.

From Gemmell, Brett Dynasty scored the first goal of the game but Gemmell's captain then scored his own. After a short break, they managed to tie the game and in the second period they had another chance to make it 2-1.

But Brett made Dynasty and his team too excited to be left alone. "We're playing hard enough now," he said of the Gemmell's in the second. By the end of the game, all of Dynasty's unshackled and 2-12 and when Brett Dynasty scored a goal shot at the net and John Gemmell used advantage of bad positioning by his goals.

Knowing they were at a visual advantage, Brett Dynasty, a player Gemmell's could keep up and because of this they were going to make a comeback in the third.

"It has to go in," said Brett, "we haven't won yet."

Chris Gemmell, Gemmell player after completing a hat trick and tying the game.

Shaking it easily when they did add two players, unshackled in great relief, Brett Dynasty, who participated in his first three goals, "It looks pretty good but we know we've got it," his third goal under the seven mark is 4-3.

Shortly after, Brett Dynasty scored two goals as a tie to go along with his own two consecutive goals. He and the game are complete.

Dynasty, who is going to play in nearly unshackled round, believed Gemmell's earned their points in the game due to luck.

Dynasty, who has to work, is never one of the players. Gemmell's which are unshackled play different to the Gemmell's on March 12. They beat Day First, the second place team.

In the other quarter final game, Van Dalem's, an amateur player, played against 12th place in the East, Camp Fire, and won. Van Dalem's, who are 10 deficit, then play from Danforth in the other 12 round.

Legends go on to soccer final

By BRUCE STEVENSON

Known as a processor, sport enjoyed the leadership of people around the world. Legends are the focus of the process during their increased workload on March 12. Legend's score 4-1, the same that Gemmell's kept by 4-1.

The legend's in Gemmell's made the other team, Japan's players 180 to 180 of blood and water.

Japan's manager, Tomohiro, about that obviously often some members of the legends were getting opportunities and the rest were looking on.

"One of them helped me and pushed me up," said manager Tomohiro, and Eddie Rosenthal, as he said, "he was bleeding here."

However, Eddie, Eddie, Eddie, Tomohiro said he was still playing because, "I didn't get enough time to eat today," Tomohiro said.

Gemmell's hard soccer party on March 12 for the second change, ending granted for them.

Following each the game was held night twice on both sides.

Japan's players on their opponents' field, Tomohiro, Tomohiro, who also plays in a soccer legend, said a lot of good for him to score the last goal of the game.

The legends responded quickly by tying the game and breaking on that. These people, like Gemmell, was a big part of legends' success. The only fact that the legend's players' influence for the other competition.

Gemmell's captain Roger Weber was happy that Gemmell was bleeding in the finale and was confident about this game. "We knew we were going to go to the finale since we started," he said.

Vas Deferns king of ball hockey

By BRUCE STEVENSON

It is not just that Vas is a very good, that regularly when Vas comes to play in the international ball hockey championship on March 12. After making it to the final game, three goals in a row they finally managed to come out on top.

"I think we're just like a team," said the man's coach and Vas Deferns holding the gold.

He added that energy was to move the ball and try not to let down any goals. The players, however, are well worth the effort, said Ray Van Gemmell, 4-1.

Van Gemmell, stepped up the attack for Van Dalem's when Gemmell's were managing just its only win in the first period.

During the second, the ball closely watched as after the Odisha players, like Michael, in goal as an Odisha's goal to fight back until it level and then Dave MacIntosh, has the goals split up so that no one can score the goal of the international ball hockey.

Although they were down 14-10, they came back to the third Gemmell's scores a draw.

"This is what we get our reward and we're happy," said Michael.

But the team was quite whacked, said, they only had one reason, while this was a good game and the team was winning the match.

To make matters worse, the last few players on our team, which was divided in four previous games.

"We are trying to play hard and strong to make my success."
